Free smart phones for ex-offenders to connect with their families and friends

A new project has been launched to help ex-offenders connect with their families and friends. Under this new scheme, free smartphones have been distributed to 30 beneficiaries thus far.

Project 'Give A Line, Change A Life' were officially launched at Selarang Halfway House yesterday. With the aim to help them be familiar with new technology, smartphones with data mobile plans have been introduced under this new project by Industrial and Services Co-operative Society Limited (ISCOS) to help ex-offenders and their family members.

Pre-installed with the ISCOS mobile app, it includes updates on new events and initiatives, and users would be able to sign up for upcoming events and make appointments to seek assistance. ISCOS targets to distribute 500 smartphones in 2020.
